FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT

Fourth Annual Report

JANUARY 1924

Report of the President

Before entering upon a report of the activities of the Society during the year 1923, I wish to pay tribute to the memory of our lamented vice-president, Professor Carl F. Kayser who died last summer while on a visit to Germany. The Society is indebted to him in a great many ways. He took a most active interest in the organization of the original group from which the Society sprang, and in the development of our work he has always been one of our most valued collaborators. His intimate knowledge of his chosen field of research, Germanistic science, enabled him to help us with his expert advice to direct wisely the assistance which our Society has been able to render in that field.

The past year has brought no improvement of conditions in Germany; on the contrary, the difficulties of intellectual as well as of physical life have materially increased. Since the middle of 1923 the expense of scientific work, expressed in gold values, has risen considerably, so that a larger amount of money is necessary now for the support of scientific undertakings than was needed last year and during the early part of the present year. Owing to these conditions the demands made upon the Emergency Society are much greater than they used to be, for with the increase of expense there has been no parallel increase of income of scientific institutions. In fact, for months to come they are entirely dependent upon outside help.

We believe that we should continue the policy of giving to German men of science the opportunity to work and to make public the results of their work, not only on account of our interest in the maintenance of intellectual life, but also because the opportunity to work is the basis of the economic well-being of those groups of men whom we try to help. It seems of the greatest importance that wherever it is possible we ought not to dispense charity, but rather to give the opportunity to work and to earn a fair return for their labor to men who are not only willing but eager to carry on productive work.

The Society is indebted to the Relief Committees of New Haven, Connecticut; Lincoln, Nebraska; and Portland, Oregon, for liberal contributions to its work. We have also been materially helped by contributions from the Deutscher Apotheker Verein of New York; the Deutsche Gesellschaft, Boston; the Deutsche Literarische Gesellschaft, Milwaukee; the Liederkrantz Damenverein and the Michigan Hilfsverein, Detroit. To all of these we express our sincere thanks.

During the past year we have enjoyed the assistance of a number of organizations and of representatives of various branches of science. First of all should be mentioned the co-operation between the Emergency Society and the Germanistic Society of America. The Germanistic Society of America is supplying German and Austrian libraries with much needed American literature, which enables German investigators and students to keep abreast of American scientific, industrial and literary work. The Germanistic Society has had, in turn, the liberal co-operation of the American Library Association and through them of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial.

Our Society has not been doing much for medical science for the reason that during the past two years the Rockefeller Foundation has organized on a large scale the support of German medical science and because committees of American physicians are working efficiently in the interest of medicine and of the medical profession in Germany and Austria.

Work in classical archaeology has been assisted most energetically by a committee of American scientists at the head of which is Professor Francis W. Kelsey of Ann Arbor, Michigan, with whom our Society, and the St. Louis and Milwaukee branches of the Society are co-operating. In mathematics we have had the co-operation of a committee headed by Professor William F. Osgood of Harvard University. Assistance to German legal periodicals has been rendered by a committee of eminent lawyers. The work of this committee has been conducted by Professor E. W. Patterson of Columbia University. Sixty men of the legal profession have contributed $350.50 towards the support of German periodicals devoted to jurisprudence.

An important undertaking has been inaugurated in co-operation with the German American School Association. The attempt has been made to raise a special fund for the support of the higher schools in Germany. Owing to lack of funds, teachers, particularly in small towns, are completely isolated, and there is great danger that the standards of teaching will suffer on account of the impossibility of acquiring indispensable teaching material and for the reason that teachers cannot keep in touch with the progress of educational and scientific work. Through the co-operation of the governments of the German states we have received reports on the most urgent needs of the higher schools, such as Gymnasias, Realschulen, etc., and we hope that part of these, at least, may be met. Up to the present time we have collected approximately $4,500 for this purpose.

In conformity with the wishes of the representatives of German science, it has been the policy of the Society to render assistance primarily to those sciences that have no direct contact with industry and which for this reason have the least chance of being supported. At the same time these sciences are fundamental for the advance of the whole country, and must not be allowed to die.

The funds contributed to the support of intellectual work in Germany and Austria, collected by the Society, are as follows:

1920—	$5,340.00
1921—	13,383.02
1922—	15,350.72
1923—	22,959.22

$57,032.96

Since its organization the Society has expended for the support of German and Austrian intellectual work

During organization—	$1,225.00
In 1920—	2,709.10
In 1921—	10,885.13
In 1922—	10,834.33	+433.81*
In 1923—	16,739.11
Cash in hand, December 31, 1923—	5,267.06
Total		$48,093.54

Of these amounts 77 percent were allotted to German, and 23 percent to Austrian and German-Bohemian institutions. When comparing the amounts received with those paid out, it must be borne in mind that considerable losses were sustained owing to depreciation of our accounts in Germany. During the past year the expense of carrying on the administrative work of the Society and the large amount of propaganda was 11.8 percent of the total income.

The Emergency Society co-operates with central organizations representing all scientific institutions in Germany and Austria, but the activities of our Society are not controlled by these organizations. We are in direct contact with representatives of important institutions abroad, and our plans are made in accordance with reports received from them and from members of our Society who have visited Germany and Austria.

Up to the end of 1922 the Society had supported 71 scientific undertakings in Germany, 46 in Austria, and 2 in Bohemia. In 1923, 101 undertakings in Germany and 17 in Austria were supported. No further support has been given in Bohemia because economic conditions in that country have become more favorable, and the need there does not seem to be quite so urgent. Up to date the total number of undertakings supported in Germany is 134, in Austria 47. It has been the policy of the Society to enlarge the number of supported undertakings cautiously, and to continue the support of those that have once been selected.

* Amounts in marks and kronen as computed at the rate when paid out.

The membership of the Society has developed in the following manner:

Dec. 31	Patrons	Fellows	Sust. Mbrs.	Reg. Mbrs.	Societies	Memb. of Afil. Soc.	Contributors	Totals
1920	—	14	120	300	—	—	—	434
1921	1	19	280	535	19	40	63	957
1922	2	18	275	767	33	97	36	1228
1923	3	28	430	730	15	113	251	1570

Branch societies exist in Newark, N. J., San Francisco, Cal., Milwaukee, Wis. In St. Louis, the Committee of Emergency Relief works in close co-operation with our Society, and the Chicago Society for Emergency Aid for Germany and Austria continues its work in co-operation with us.

The need for the continuance of our efforts is even greater than it was a year ago. The membership of the Society should be enlarged so as to secure a larger income with which to meet the increased demands. It is only through the efforts of our present members that this can be accomplished, and every member is urgently requested to bring the matter to the attention of his friends in order to gain new friends and members for the society.

FRANZ BOAS,
President.

Report of the Corresponding Secretary

The Corresponding Secretary spent the larger part of the year under review in Germany, incidentally investigating and reporting on conditions of scientific work and conferring from time to time with the officers of the Notgemeinschaft der deutschen Wissenschaft in Berlin and with the editors of scientific journals. In the meantime, his work on this side of the Atlantic was ably taken care of by Dr. G. A. Betz.

Through the efforts of Professor R. H. Fife, one of our directors, a considerable number of subscriptions were obtained in the United States for the Jahresberichte für germanische Philologie, the Jahresberichte für neuere deutsche Literatur, and for the publications of the Literatur Archiv Gesellschaft. These three enterprises have thus been materially helped and soon may be entirely self-supporting.

One of the most important tasks of the office-staff is the recruiting of new members. This is done largely by sending out circular letters to addresses obtained from our old members. Except in the summer months, an average of 650 letters have been sent out regularly every month from our office. This number includes also one follow-up letter which goes out to all who do not respond to the first appeal. In this way the number of members and contributors has been increased during the year by 342.

Lists of members of several New York Clubs were also used. After a trial canvass of one hundred names from each list, it was found that this form of circularizing did not produce sufficiently good results to warrant its continuance.

Some new members and a considerable number of contributors were secured through advertisements in the "Nation."

During November and December, over seven thousand appeals were sent out jointly with the German-American School Association on behalf of German schools. From this drive, which is still under way, there has been received to date $4,617.

F. W. J. HEUSER,
Corresponding Secretary.
